

Abstract

We discuss the physical importance of the electroweak monopole. As the first magnetically charged and stable topological elementary particle in history of physics it has deep implications in cosmology. It creates the primordial black holes which could explain the dark matter, becomes the seed of galaxies and large scale structure of the universe, and generates the intergalactic magnetic field. Moreover it could create the totally new magnetic current.